

quivered—if something quivered, it shook, shivered, or trembled quickly wailed—if you wailed, you let out a long loud cry because you were upset about something or in pain scattered—if things or people scattered, they went off in different directions lonesome—if you are lonesome, you feel lonely and want company elated—if you are elated, you are very happy and excited about something hopeless—if something seems hopeless, you feel as if there is no chance that what you want to happen will happen